WASHINGTON, D. C., June 6.—Down in northeastern Bolivia, where the drainage flows eastward through lush tropic bush to the Amazon, and the innumerable rivers bear long and sonorous Spanish names or queerly accented Indian ones, there is a stream known by the good American appellation of River Heath. And at the meeting of the League to Enforce Peace in Washington, D. C., is a white-bearded old gentleman, vigorous in spite of his 77 years, Dr. E. R. Heath of Kansas City, who tells how River Heath got its name.

First to Enter District

Dr. Heath was the leader, chief naturalist and topographer and one-third of the personnel of a remarkable exploring expedition which penetrated one of the greatest unknown regions in South America, opened up one of the richest rubber districts in the world, and incidentally made the first data from a district the traversing of which was universally believed to be equivalent to a peculiarly uncomfortable form of suicide.

The explorer himself never saw River Heath. The latter stream is a tributary of the great Madre de Dios, which in turn flows into the Beni. It was the Beni which Dr. Heath explored, running down its current for hundreds of miles through a region which had never before been entered, which was infested by wild animals, swarms of insects more dangerous than the animals, and wild men more dangerous than either—hostile and cannibal Indians. River Heath was given his name in appreciation of the value and magnitude of his accomplishment and the resource and courage he displayed in carrying it out.

The Beni was known as an important stream draining rich territory and probably navigable, but that it had never been used as a highway, even by the native rubber gatherers who penetrate indifferently into regions that most Europeans consider it a feat to explore. The cannibal savages who roamed the district had been alienated partly by the treatment they had received at the hands of the first rubber gatherers, and partly by centuries of irregular warfare with all strangers running back to the pre-Columbian days of the Incas, until they discouraged exploration by the simple and effective means of eating the explorers. Such was their reputation that between difficulty in inducing natives to accompany him and subsequent desertions, Dr. Heath made most of his trip in a leaky fifteen-foot boat accompanied by only two companions.

The explorer first went to South America as a secretary of legation to Chile. Subsequently he worked his way, inland in his capacity as a doctor, cleaning railway construction camps of fever. On the threshold of the unknown regions he determined to undertake some of the many difficult explorations that then awaited the pioneer—and which to a considerable extent still await him today. Dr. Heath first intended to work his way down the Amazon through Brazil, but just at this time Dr. James Orton, another enterprising American, accomplished the feat from the

COLONEL IS CALLED THE CAUSE

Perkins Commands Moose to Bear in Mind That

BY H. L. RENNICK

(United Press Staff Correspondent.)
CHICAGO, June 6.—George W. Perkins, in a statement to progressive delegates today issued a flat ultimatum that it is Roosevelt or no one for the presidential nomination, so far as the progressives are concerned.

"We have no second choice," "Go to it," Perkins' statement concluded.

Coming on the heels of a meeting of the progressive insurgents, called by the Mississippi delegation last night, the statement of Perkins created a distinct stir.

T. R. is Their Cause
Perkins' statement follows:
Let me remind you that we are not here for the avowed purpose of being against somebody. We are here for somebody, and that somebody is Theodore Roosevelt.

"I urge you to bear this in mind in all your conversations, with whomsoever you talk, while in Chicago. The process of tearing down men and things in this country and in the world should stop. It is time to be for somebody, for something, and to build up. We have not got it in for anybody or anything. We are out for a matchless man and an incomparable cause.

"You know that no one else has such a man and that he is the cause. Therefore, we have no second choice. 'Go to it.'"

Perkins was asked if this means he had no second choice, "now or from now on."

"Now, or any time," was the response.

T. R. or Nothing

Determined on a program of Theodore Roosevelt or nothing, the radical bull moose today jumped square into the limelight with a challenge to conservative progressives to do their worst.

Delegates from eighteen southern and western states headed the movement and were believed to have aligned with them Victor Murdock, chairman of the progressive national committee, William Allen White, Kansas bull moose chieftain, and Raymond Robins, who will be temporary chairman of the progressive convention.

They have determined on this program: Nominate Roosevelt Friday, the third day of the convention.

Run a third party if the republicans refuse to accept the colonel.

When word of the conference of the eighteen state delegations reached Victor Murdock today the Kansan declared:

"We will nominate Theodore Roosevelt; you may quote me to that effect."

Members of this radical clan today characterized the first public utterance of Justice Hughes, made yesterday in Washington, as a typical pussy-foot speech. They held that the speech was so full of glittering generalities as to be meaningless.

WANTS STATE'S MONEY

WASHINGTON, June 6.—John G. Pollard, attorney general of Virginia, on Monday filed a motion in the United States supreme court asking steps be taken to execute the judgment of the court in behalf of Virginia for $13,000,000 due from West Virginia as a part of the state on January 1, 1861, when West Virginia separated because of the slavery question.

BURTON TO STAY AWAY

CLEVELAND, Ohio, June 6.—Theodore E. Burton will not go to the republican national convention, he told friends Monday. It would not be dignified, he said.

LA FOLLETTE HEADQUARTERS, KAISERHOF HOTEL, CHICAGO, June 6.—In the event that La Follette is eliminated with other favorite sons in the disintegration of this group of candidates, Wisconsin's old guard and progressives may find themselves in accord upon a presidential candidacy for the first time in sixteen years. The eleven Philipp delegates are avowed Hughes men. Sentiment among the fifteen La Follette delegates is practically unanimous for Hughes as second choice. However, the latter will stand pat for La Follette until they feel that their votes will be decisive for Hughes.

Resolutions probably will include a plank declaring for preparedness involving the Swiss army plan. Out and out declaration for an embargo on arms may be avoided by one favoring government manufacture of all war supplies, making the embargo unnecessary.

There will be some effort to incorporate the Wisconsin idea on waterpowers in a constructive plank, and government ownership may be advocated.

In general, the social, justice and economic measures of the 1912 La Follette platform will be reiterated, to "put the convention on record."

Delegation Organizes

The straight-out La Follette men met last night and nominated a delegation slate, which was adopted in a meeting of the entire delegation this morning. The roster follows:

Chairman Walter Houser, Mondovi.

Secretary, E. J. Gross, Milwaukee.

Sergeant-at-arms, Lieut. Gov. Edw. Dithmar.

Permanent Organization, James Thompson, La Crosse.

Credentials, James A. Stone, Redsburg.

Rules and Order of Business, John J. Blaine, Boscobel.

Resolutions, E. J. Gross.

Notify nominee for president, Christian Doerfler.

Notify vice presidential nominee, A. A. Porter, Portage.

Honorary vice president of the convention, Harry Krumrey, Plymouth.

National committeeman, A. T. Rogers, Madison.

The minority members of the delegation offered no opposing slate, since that would invite defeat.

Dopesters in the Wisconsin delegation, both factions, agree that Hughes' statement of Americanism last night stamps him as a candidate and adds much to his chance for success.

The convention visitor who gets only the mass effect carries away an impressive illusion of something vast and mysterious, worked out in the wondrous way of God's miracles. But come up close, ladies and gentlemen, where you can distinguish the individuals. Then you begin to get the human side, not so "just grand" but much more interesting.

Leaving the mass effect to Mary Roberts Rinehart, William Allen White and Jack Lait, it pleases one to lay aside the dice of speculation and have at some of the persons known and beloved of TRIBUNE readers.

IS THIS DECLARATION
OR IS IT JUST SPEECH?

WASHINGTON, June 6.—In the seclusion of the National Cathedral school lawn, where he was presenting an American flag to the honor graduate, Justice Charles E. Hughes last night made his first public address since the opening of the pre-convention campaign.

He told the young women graduates that the flag meant America first, an undivided allegiance and a nation united and equal to its tasks.

Flag Means America First

"It means America first; it means an undivided allegiance. It means America united, strong and efficient, equal to her tasks. It means that you cannot be saved by the valor and devotion of your ancestors; that to each generation comes its patriotic duty; and that upon your willingness to sacrifice and endure, as those before you have sacrificed and endured, rests the national hope.

"It speaks of equal rights; of the inspiration of free institutions exemplified and vindicated; of liberty under law intelligently conceived and impartially administered. There is not a thread in it but scorns self-indulgence, weakness and rapacity. It is eloquent of our common interests, outweighing all divergencies of opinion; and of our common destiny."

BIG QUESTION BEFORE

Is Dead In Pekin
Reinsch Cables

WASHINGTON, June 6.—The state department today received an official report that Yuan Shi Kai, president of China, is dead.

The cable which contained the notification was sent in code by the American minister at Pekin.

Minister Reinsch cabled Yuan Shi Kai died last night. The message was dated 11 o'clock today, Pekin time, and was a bare announcement of Yuan's death and a statement that Premier Luan Chi Jui has pledged his full support to Vice President Li Yuan Hung, who succeeds Yuan.

Poisoning Cause?

SAN FRANCISCO, June 6.—Japanese newspapers recently received from China unofficial rumors that the illness of Yuan Shi Kai was caused by poisoning. It was reported that the revolutionists had many assassins in Pekin, and that one might have gained access to the palace.

Observers of Chinese affairs here were of the opinion that his death would result in new uprisings in southern China. The lack of a strong man to take Yuan Shi Kai's place, it was believed, would cause the revolutionary situation to become more grave.

Revolutionists in San Francisco's Chinatown celebrated when the report of Yuan's death was received.

FIRE FAN HURT

CHICAGO, June 6.—Matthew Martin, a fire fan, had his skull fractured by a wall, Captain Joseph C. Lacey and another fireman were overcome and thirty girls of the Allegretti Candy company, adjoining, were in peril, when fire destroyed a five-story building on South Water street, Monday, doing $30,000 damage. The building was vacant.

(United Press Staff Correspondent.)

CHICAGO, June 6.—Justice Hughes spoke last night. Exactly what did he say, was the question which during the early hours of today overshadowed all other topics in the convention city.

The Hughes graduating day speech was adjudged by his own volunteer workers here as the nearest to a clear definition of where the former governor stands as it was possible for a justice of the supreme court to make.

It was held by the progressives to be entirely too impalpable of application to present issues to give a satisfactory line on the justice's views. The favorite sons viewed the flag speech as merely a very patriotic talk not to be construed as a creed of faith.

The Hughes opposition admitted the speech gave Frank Hitchcock, the justice's self-appointed agent here, his first tangible line on where his candidate stood.

Scrap the Roller

Coincident with the rending of Hughes' veil of silence came a plan today by the Old Guard for a public and formal scrapping of the steam roller. The organization wants to emphasize its argument since the first delegates arrived—that the convention is to be free and untrammelled.

The organization has the votes to put over any candidate it chooses. The two things on which the interests of the Old Guard depend is the selection of a candidate who CAN WIN, and the complete restoration of those parts of the party machine which were torn loose four years ago. The latter consideration is of first importance.

Talk of the probable nominee buzzes through the hotel lobbies but it is not engrossing the time of the conferees in the inner circle. Here all thought and effort is being on salving over old scars, spreading tempting viands before returning political prodigals and to whittling down to a minimum that faction of the progressives which it is recognized can never be coaxed back.

This explains Senator Smoot's insistence on full publicity for all contests before the national committee; why he protested against referring these contests to sub-committees as something which, while entirely regular, might give excuse for the charge that the committee was not playing fair. It explains the superabundance of "judicial temperance" exercised by the committee in deciding contests so as to cause the least possible friction.

ADMIRALTY ANNOUNCES DEATH

Hope is Abandoned That Any of Cruiser's Complement of 650 Men or Kitchener's Staff Has Been Saved

LONDON, June 6.—The loss of Earl Kitchener, secretary of state for war, England's greatest military organizer, and the conqueror of the Soudan, with his entire staff, when the cruiser Hampshire was sunk off the Orkney Islands by a mine or torpedo, was officially announced by the military admiralty today.

The news of England's greatest personal loss in the war, which has stunned London, already hardened to shocks, was issued in the following formal bulletin:

"The admiralty reports with great regret that the ship Hampshire, with Lord Kitchener and his staff on board, was sunk last night about 8 o'clock off the Orkney Islands by a mine or a torpedo. Four boats were seen by observers on the shore to leave the ship. Heavy seas were running but patrol vessels and destroyers at once proceeded to the scene. The whole shore has been searched from seaward but it is greatly feared that there is little hope for any survivors. No report has yet been received from the searching party on shore."

Faint Hope for Survivors

A later announcement from the admiralty said that the searching parties, sent out in boats along the coast, had found only bodies of the drowned and one capsized boat. There was still the faint hope that possibly some might have reached shore and proceeded inland in search of aid. On account of the high seas, however, this was not considered likely, and the admiralty did not encourage the hope of any survivors being found.

Enroute to Russia

It was stated that the Hampshire was on her way to Russia, where Kitchener was to hold conferences with the officials at Petrograd.

The Hampshire was in command of Captain Herbert J. Savill. The report of the loss of the ship was telegraphed to the admiralty by Admiral Sir John Jellicoe, commander of the British fleets.

There has been no mention in the cables or the wireless of the cruiser Hampshire having taken part in the great sea battle last week off Jutland.

The Hampshire was a British cruiser of the Argyll type. Her complement was 655 officers and men. She was 450 feet long and displaced 10,850 tons. Her armament was four 7.5 inch guns, six 6-inch guns and two torpedo tubes.

Foremost Soldier

Horatio Herbert Kitchener was England's foremost soldier, taking that distinction when Lord Roberts, "Little Bobs," died. He was born at Croter House, Bally Longford county, Kerry, June 24, 1850, son of the late Lieut.-Col. H. H. Kitchener, of Cossington, Leicestershire, and Miss Chevalier of Aspell Hall, Suffolk. He was educated at the royal military academy in Woolwich. He entered the royal engineers in 1871. His progress thereafter was: Palestine survey, 1874-78; Cyprus survey, 1878-82; commanded Egyptian cavalry, 1882-84; Nile expedition, 1884-85; governor of Suakin, 1885-88; Dongola expeditionary force, 1896; promoted to major general, K. C. B.; commanded Khartoum expedition, 1898; was given the thanks of parliament and raised to the peerage with a grant of 30,000 pounds; chief of staff of forces of South Africa in 1899-1900; commander-in-chief, 1900-1902; promoted lieutenant general and general, received viscounty with a grant of 50,000 pounds and thanks of parliament; commander-in-chief of India in 1902-09; member of committee of imperial defense in 1910; at the beginning of the present war was made minister of war; held the position at the time of his death.

Enroute to Base?

The main base of the British high seas fleet is supposed to be in the neighborhood of the islands north of Scotland. For this reason it was at first believed Lord Kitchener with his staff went to the Orkney Islands for the purpose of reviewing the bat-

BRITISH STUNNED BY THE DEATH OF GREATEST SOLDIER

BY ED L. KEEN
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
LONDON, June 6.—Public consternation and amazement today followed the announcement that Lord Kitchener and his staff were sent to their deaths by a mine or torpedo, which blew up the cruiser Hampshire, off the Orkney islands. Crowds gathered in Whitehall about the postoffice, seeking further details, following the formal announcement of the loss of "K. of K." The flag on the war office was at half-mast and the blinds of the offices were drawn. The crowd received no further information, and the air of the officials indicated clearly that they held no hope that Kitchener might have escaped. Surprise was expressed that a cruiser bearing the minister of war could have been destroyed by a torpedo or by a mine. It is probable that the question whether the cruiser had an escort and whether she was provided with any protection against submarines will be put direct to the government. Many comments were heard in the crowd about the war office. Many remarked that "it was lucky it did not happen before conscription became effective." They referred to the great power of Kitchener's name in stimulating voluntary recruiting.

TORNADO LEAVES IN WAKE DEATH AND DESTRUCTION

MEMPHIS Tenn., June 6.—One hundred and ninety-one persons were killed in a tornado that swept through Arkansas and Mississippi last night, according to dispatches here today. Thousands of dollars property damage was done and hundreds of persons were injured. Twenty-five persons are dead at Judsonia, White county, Arkansas; six in Redford county; three in Hot Springs; eight near Natchez, Miss.; and two near Jackson, Miss., according to word received here. Four more deaths and seventy-five injured were reported at Tuckerman, Ark. where property damage was estimated at $250,000. A crew of five drowned when a boat sank in White river, near Augusta, Ark. FRESHMEN STORM SHOWHOUSE AND LAND IN LOCKUP

MADISON Wis., June 6.—During a noisy celebration over the annual burning of freshmen green caps and the victory of the Wisconsin university track team at the conference meet at Evanston, Ill., 800 Wisconsin university students, Saturday night stormed the Orpheum theater, demanding a free show, and following a clash with a squad of patrolmen five students were arrested and locked in the police station on a charge of disorderly conduct.

President C. R. Van Hise of the university came to the police station and induced the rioting students, who were angry over the arrest of their fellows, to disperse.

The situation growing out of the demonstrations took on a serious as-

A RAILWAY POWDER PLANT

A process has been devised by the use of which gunpowder and other high explosives can be manufactured aboard a railway train in motion. The machinery includes devices for performing all the essential operations of powder making, from the first compounding where the elements are mixed, through press, a cutting wheel, a hot air drying apparatus, to a glazing cylinder for parading the grains their final polish. If the whole proves as practical as the inventor believes it will, its effect will be to render powder plants less liable to destruction in time of war than is the case at present. It will also be possible to manufacture explosives in the very train that is carrying them to the front.

A NOTICE THAT COULDN'T BE BOUGHT

The board of trade, the women's clubs, the council and every other civic or municipal organization in La Crosse supports the hands of the health department. It is pleasant to record that criticism of the department has gone out of fashion. If anything were needed to enforce the practical wisdom of this attitude, nothing could be more to the point than a discussion by Dr. Evans, the Chicago Tribune's health expert, which appeared in Monday's issue.

"Mothers, go to La Crosse this summer," says the Chicago authority for caption. Here is his reason for the advice:

The New York milk committee says that the babies of La Crosse, Wis., get the fairest chance for life among all the babies of the country. La Crosse is located in southwestern Wisconsin, on the east bank of the Mississippi river. It has 31,000 inhabitants, composed of farmers, merchants, manufacturers, workmen—no one class predominating. The people are of every stock, but perhaps there are enough Scandinavians to influence the baby death rate for good and not enough Negroes to influence it for bad.

Up to this point we have not referred to any factor very much out of the ordinary. Then what is the answer? About seven years ago La Crosse reorganized its board of health. They went to the Chicago health department and got a whole time health officer, Dr. Furstman. On this foundation they began to build. They went to work on their milk supply. They organized a child welfare society, with nurses, women's auxiliaries, and all the other good resources of such an organization.

All of these working together have made La Crosse a mighty good place for a baby to live in. Mothers who are considering a place to take the baby should consider La Crosse. Young parents should figure on La Crosse when planning a place in which to settle.

"Mothers, go to La Crosse this summer." No amount of money could buy an advertisement so effective and convincing as this unreserved recommendation by one of the country's leading authorities.

"DEMENTIA AMERICANA"

How can "Americanism" be a political issue?

Suppose we get het up over alien swaggering and proceed to elect a man president upon the slogan "Americanism", what will come of it? Can "Americanism" become an administrative policy? If so, what would it accomplish, and by what means? Would it stand certain people up against stone walls? Would it deport others? Just WHAT would it do?

We are proceeding to be duly stirred over what we may think is a program for changing the hearts of men, of making patriotism by proclamation and loyalty by edict. But, when our "Americanism" president is elected and the wheels have gone around in the national capitol, in hearts where now is disloyalty and sedition there still will be the seed of treason. "Americanism" can be made only by making America beloved to those who dwell therein. One doubts that this can be accomplished by turning the country back into the hands of the Morgans and Perkinses under the guise of a militant patriotism.

NEUTRAL THOUGHT

In the cross-currents of contradiction about who really won that battle in the North sea floats one concrete idea which neutrality may grasp without fear of splinters: A few more such battles, and the Navy league might as well go out of business. It were useless to clamor for a building program aiming at the largest navy in the world, when patient waiting and European gunnery would scale the world's navies down to our size.

We suggest that the Navy league now stage a cat-boat race for nautical preparedness.

PERSHING REACHES BORDER TOWNS TO INSPECT CAMPS

COLUMBUS, N. M., June 6.—General Pershing and staff arrived in camp here Monday from Mexico. Pershing's trip along the entire line of communications was said to have been for the purpose of inspecting the American camps and the fitness of the supply routes for the rainy season.

Begins Reply
WASHINGTON, June 6.—President Wilson has begun the draft of his reply to the latest note from Carranza demanding withdrawal of American troops, or explanation of why the United States should keep its troops on Mexican soil.

It is the administration's present intention to have its reply in Carranza's hands before the end of the week—perhaps before Thursday, to forestall as much as possible adverse criticism of the president's Mexican policy at the Chicago convention.

With the personal help of Secretary Lansing, the president may complete a rough draft in time for cabinet consideration today.

That the troop withdrawal suggested would be refused, seemed certain.

DENIES T. R. WILL COME

CHICAGO, June 6.—John W. McGrath, Colonel Roosevelt's secretary, declared positively Monday that Colonel Roosevelt will not come to Chicago during the conventions.

Preparedness

Murphy, an old service man, with a weather-beaten face and an enlisting age of 38, had joined one of Kitchener's regiments and went through recruits' drill and training with a smile on his Irish face.

On the occasion of a night march with full kit Murphy slogged along eight miles of muddy roads in a style that put many of the younger men to shame and spoke of his sixty pound kit as a mere flea's burden.

Alas! A zealous officer thought fit to inspect a pack or two, and Murphy's chance to be one of the number. Inside was a bag of feathers borrowed from the poultice where Murphy was billeted.

"What is the meaning of this, sir?" sternly demanded the officer.

Murphy hesitated for a moment, then, grave as an owl, he answered, "Sure, sorr, I thought they'd be useful in case I was transferred to the flyin' corps."

Too Much

By a piece of good luck the new recruit had been appointed orderly to his captain and the latter was now giving him his instructions.

"You are to rise at 5 o'clock," he said, "shave yourself and clean your boots and equipment. Then you clean my boots, buttons, belt, etc., shave me, see to my horse—which you must groom thoroughly—and clean the equipment. After that you go to your hut, help to serve out breakfast and after breakfast lend a hand washing up. At 8 o'clock you go on parade and drill till 12—"

The recruit, whose face had been growing longer and longer, then interrupted:

"Beg pardon, sir, but is there any one else in the army besides me?"

A Rural Industry

"What you want to do first," said a Boston man to a New England farmer whom he was advising touching certain needed improvements in and about his place, "is to have that mudhole in the road fixed."

"You experts and reformers don't understand local conditions," said the farmer, scornfully. "Why, I've putty nigh paid off a mortgage with the money I've made haulin' automobiles out of that mudhole."

THE TRIBUNE'S DAILY TRAVELETTE
(By Nikkah)

NANTUCKET

Nantucket is a bit of old New England—the New England of Hawthorne and Holmes. The uneasy Atlantic has insulated it from the shocks and stimulations of ultra-modernism and the discovery of the first petroleum-gusher did much to lull it to sleep.

For Nantucket was the capital of the American whale fishery in the days when American whalers were so far ahead of the rest of the world that there was not even room for comparison. There was a time when ninety whale-ships called Nantucket home, and you could meet Nantucket boys in every lost forgotten corner of the seven seas. The men of this little New England island discovered over a score of new islands in the southern ocean—all in the way of business—and local tradition even says that a few of them were eaten by over-hospital natives. But today we bore and blast into the plains of Oklahoma and Texas for our oil—and you can't make gasoline from sperm oil, anyway.

It is fitting that you should be compelled to come to Nantucket by sea. The mainland ports that you can reach by rail lose half their savor. You raise the low-lying last mass as the boat heaves up and down on the choppy swell just as those old time mariners used to raise it, after straining their eyes through the sun-sparkle of all the oceans for two and three years on a voyage. There is the same little city that they came home to, huddled close about the wharves, rising abruptly from the water-side up the terraced hill.

There are still a hundred boats bobbing at buoys and anchors in the harbor. Many of them are pleasure craft, for the summer visitor is taking the place of the whale as a source of revenue. The old town is delightfully intimate and comfortable, with its narrow winding streets, its over-arching elms and home-like shingle houses. Many of the houses have lookouts, where the women and the retired captains who had made their competence and withdrawn from the fishery, used to stand and scan the sea for homing vessels. The lookouts are deserted now. The waters still heave and glitter to the far horizon, but no battered blunt-bowed whaler, clumsy as a cart-horse and sea-worthy as a dreadnought, comes beating her way into port.

"Why fight us, my dear young lady? You are perfectly mad. Your whole scheme is absurd. Laws, courts, injunctions—evictions—records—all that sort of thing is the way men fight nowadays. Why plots and poniards and all that? The Baron is daft. Who are your attorneys in the city?"

"Ah, mon Dieu—I don't know! What for I know lawyers? The Baron, he say—"

"You poor child—" began I, in real commiseration, forgetting our dilemma in her own. Then she turned angrily on me. "I wish I had let it blow up!"

"But you didn't. You mercifully and courageously let Mr. Williams live to work another day."

"He's gone to the city—and he'll bring men and machines more than ever," I retorted. Then continued placidly: "Why don't you come over and look at his diabolical machine that you hate so well?"

She looked long at it. "Very well. I never have been near it. It's a monster, tearing the heart out of my beautiful forest. We will go see."

I followed her as she stole out of the glade in her running pique. The Baron had closed his eyes and was sighing over another bottle of his too-green beer—an unopened one, this time.

It was a long hot pull in that silent grass-hung canal to the dredge at the end of it. We passed the blackened area, and then the torn embankment where the dynamite boat had gone up. The wood saint laughed. "Bom! Do you remember the noise, ocDtor?" Then she fell silent, and I had hard work keeping up with her canoe stroke, so sure, so easy, so elusive the quick strength with which she drew the pique through the water. We drew up at the greasy deck of the dredge.

Clell was testing some lubricants in the engine-room and did not see us until Laure darkened the door. Then he gasped his amazement. He extended a grimy hand.

"It is honest dirt on there," he said smilingly.

"But mine—from off my isle, messieur. I suppose you will make a pretty speech now, and say I can have it back with the hand." She turned to look up in the black space around the drums and boilers, and her assurance seemed going. She was in the enemy's camp, and it spoke grim power and brute purpose against her fancies. Somehow my provoking sympathy for her would arise; so I turned into the hot little office and pretended to be absorbed in the blue-prints on Williams' desk, leaving them out on the deck among the machinery in that silence of the noon swamp.

"After this," she went on slowly. "We can not pretend to be friends—none of us, at all. He—he will not trust me any more; and I—I will hate him more than ever."

"You splendid little fighter! I—oh, well, I wish I could help you. This Williams—I hated him, too, Laure. Only, he wore it out, somehow. I wish you had never refused his compromise. It's too late now, but that forty thousand dollars he made the company offer you—"

"Jamais—jamais! No—we shall go away! Messieur le Baron, he say we shall go to France—to Bordeaux—and he will shake his fist at my cousin there who sold out the property; we shall go to Paris, to Vienna, St. Petersburg—always the baron say he shall roar and shake his fist and denounce Yankees. Messieur le Baron say, first I must have a little hat, all pearls and danglers like we saw in a magazine, which will make me look dangerous, like a Eurasian spy of royalty—and then to Europe we shall go, and never shall Messieur le Baron cease to denounce Yankees and lawyers and diggers of mud."

"He is a magnificent fool, Laure." "That is the only kind to be. It is better than digging mud or talking seed catalogue for cabbages like Papa Prosper. Messieur le Baron say he will take me to the palace of his cousin, the Prince of Thurn—he say in the prince's garden there are no mosquitoes like Isle Bonne." "And no wonderful sunsets shining back from the pools in the forest, and from the lakes when you cross in the little green pique; and there will be no wild garden such as Prosper's where you are free. You will have many things, perhaps—gowns and people and sights, but you will want to come back to your island some day."

"Be still," she whispered. "My island—and he is taking it." The young man was silent; then he went on, for she seemed stricken with grief at last, and had not her usual blithe defiance: "I know. But if you could see—what he sees? The Isle Bonne lands again reclaimed from the sea—and the homes and farms on what your family abandoned long ago to desolation—how beautiful he would make it. I can see it, Laure, and I—I—hated him."

"I know," she said. "That is the strange thing. And you cared for me a bit—and yet would not help me." "There was the man's game," he answered. "That was the big thing."

"Ah, that is the way it goes! She sighed, her light step sounded forward, and she was loosening the tie-line of her green canoe. She had not won him from his grudging loyalty. To me, listening, that was the fine thing, the rugged love he was finding for the chief despite himself; women were well enough, but this was greater, the man's stuff, in him. I heard her speak again above the stroke of her paddle: "Suppose there was danger? M'sieu, would you come? Could I call you?"

"From the ends of the earth! On—"

The Annette Kellerman picture, which cost $1,000,000 and took six months to produce, is going to be released before many weeks. The Fox publicity man speaks of the picture in the following eloquent words:

"The effect that this picture will create in your mind will be multiplication of the wonderful pictures you would gather in an evening of reading the more imaginative scenes and descriptions from the Moorish and Turkish stories of Pierre Loti, Burton's Arabian Nights and the atmospheric beauties of the master word painter of a newer generation—Robert Hichens, author of 'The Garden of Allah,' 'Barbary Sheen,' 'The Call of the Blood,' and many other equally tense descriptive novels."

"Influenced by none of these stories directly, Herbert Brenon, with his remarkable capacity for depicting the unusual and the beautiful, nevertheless has created in his own mind a story embracing the more entrancing and memorable beauties of those that have been enumerated."

Do You Know That:
Alice Brady was tutored for a social life—and went on the stage against her father's wishes?

Thomas A. Edison is working on a new and more satisfactory camera?

Mary Miles Minter has been fourteen years old for five years? And that her real name is Juliet Shelby and she was a stage player at the age of 12?

Lorna Volare is the youngest actress in the world—age 3?

John Ince made a picture, "The Cowardly Way," with 200 double exposures?

Anna Pennington, Ziegfeld dancer, soon to be a Famous Player star, says she knows more about Dickens than about Broadway, and that her favorite novel is "David Copperfield." However, it wasn't art that induced her to act for the movies. When asked what led her to take to this new career she said, "I needed a new car."

ly what do you mean, Laure?" The little green pique had slipped along in the shadow of the roze cane; she turned to look back with a sad smile.

"But when it came I should have to call on one who loved me!" He watched her go, staring after her in doubt at her new moods. She was admitting sorry defeat after her long defiance.

CHAPTER XIII
The Old Pirate Head

I came back to the idle dredge boat the next day, after a rather perplexing night at the baron's. I had spent it alone. It was the first time the rotund knight had not awakened under his mosquito netting and bawled for Allesandro to fetch the early coffee. I wondered at his absence. Allesandro's pink and blue lugger, which had lain yesterday in the cove of the flooded forest, must have been poled out the canal to the tidal lakes during the night, and the master with it. Neither did Laure come stealing through the Isle Bonne swamps in her pique from the other side of the island. "That proves," I reflected, "that something was planned by the two. Something is up in this delicious warfare."

I made my own coffee, and then put off to Williams' dredge two miles in the shrimpy marsh. It was a fair breezy morning with the whisk of white clouds up from the gulf, one could almost catch the tumult of the surf on those outer reefs.

Clell hailed me from the crane-man's nest up on the arm of the derrick which sung idly above the steel "clam-shell" digger. The first impression was of his loneliness; the murky little kitchen was deserted.

Suffs Descend In Force On Delegates To The Convention

CHICAGO, June 6.—Thirteen hundred determined suffragists, delegates to the woman's party convention opening here today, descended today upon Candidates' row and the downtown hotels where delegates to the republican and progressive conventions are quartered demanding immediate and decisive action toward submission of a federal equal suffrage amendment.

Each woman worked under specific instructions to get a flat "yes" or "no" statement from the delegates she was listed to see. No evasion was to be allowed, and every delegate was down on the visiting list of some one of the suffrage workers.

The first and only flat rejection of the woman's cause reported at noon came from Senator Weeks of Massachusetts, delegate and candidate for presidential nomination. Weeks' name at once went on the party's black list. Weeks was told that four million voters of suffrage states—holding the balance of power between the republican and democratic parties, would cut him cold in event he should win his fight for the republican nomination.

Suffrage workers are not satisfied with promises that the party platforms contain endorsement of equal suffrage, nor even that they pledge the party to submit a federal amendment in event it is returned to power. The fight is for immediate action by which the republican party would pledge its support for such an amendment at the present session of congress, there being sufficient democratic support for suffrage. If the minority in congress should be lined up solidly to meet the party's pledge, to insure its adoption.

Among Monday's arrivals to the convention was Helen Kellar, the wonderful blind girl of Massachusetts. Miss Kellar will speak at a luncheon, originally offered at $1 each, are now bid at $5 with no more to be had.

Vote on Suffrage In Iowa Is Close

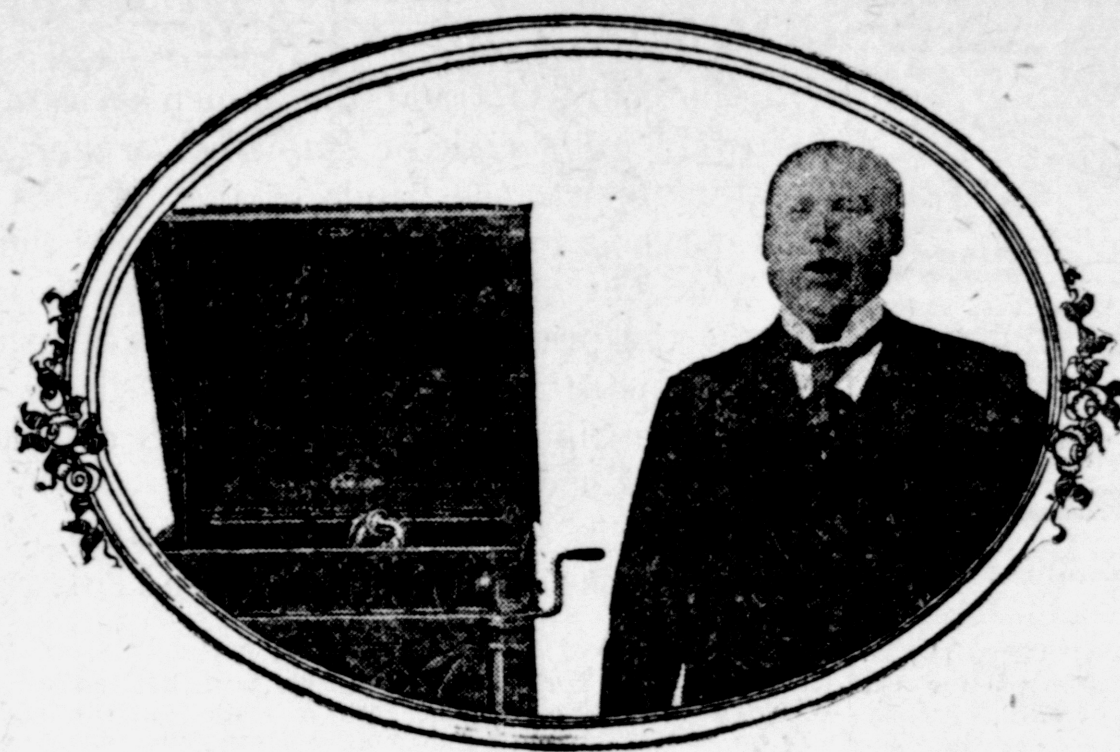

DES MOINES, Iowa, June 6.—Returns today from yesterday's vote on the woman's suffrage amendment to the Iowa constitution indicated that the result would be close. Out of 2,297 precincts in the state, only 617 had reported. These show 67,157 for the amendment and 70,779 against.

Woman suffrage leaders, however, claim that the returns from the 125 county precincts now in show that 60 per cent of the farmers voted for "votes for women," and that it will carry. The bulk of the returns in are from the cities and will probably be twenty-four hours before the entire vote is tabulated.

W. L. Harding of Sioux City has apparently won the republican nomination for governor. The democratic candidates were fixed by a state conference, and did not enter into the primary fight.

Fifteen Thousand Children Parade

NEWARK, N. J., June 6.—There will be 15,000 school children in today's parade and pageant. The grown ups will have no part in the spectacle, which is a feature of Newark's celebration of the city's 25th birthday.

Open Convention By Having Their Pictures Taken

CHICAGO, June 6.—True to feminine traditions of the National Woman's Suffrage association opened their first national convention today at the Princess theater, by having their pictures taken. Then they settled down to listen to President Carrie Chapman Catt tell them that the vote in Iowa yesterday, which appears to have added that state to the equal suffrage list, was a sledge hammer blow in their behalf in getting a favorable equal suffrage plank in the platforms of both the republican and democratic parties this year.

At the same time five blocks away, in the Blackstone theater, the dim-tant suffragettes of the congressional union, at a closed session, loaded their guns for their charge tomorrow on the resolutions committee of the republican convention.

The suffrage association expected to rush through this afternoon a resolution requesting the republican party to give the "protecting power and prestige of your great party platform to the struggle of women for political liberty."

EXCURSION IS BIG TOPIC OF LEAGUE

The meeting of the North Side Progressive league tonight is expected to develop into an anticipation gathering for the excursion Friday, sentiment on the North side indicated today. The North side is preparing for a "day off" for the event and it was the league which first fostered the outing plan.

Serious consideration of rip-rapping of Copeland park with possible action tending toward conferences with city officials is expected to be taken at the meeting. High water in Black river, driven by stiff westerly winds during the recent high water did great damage to the park banks. League members have unofficially discussed some time possible measures toward insuring the park from further damage.

Il Too Fat Get More Fresh Air

BE MODERATE IN YOUR DIET AND REDUCE YOUR WEIGHT. TAKE OIL OF KOREIN.

Lack of fresh air it is said weakens the oxygen carrying power of the blood, the liver becomes sluggish, fat accumulates and the action of many of the vital organs are hindered thereby. The heart action becomes weak, work is an effort and the beauty of the figure is destroyed.

Fat put on by indoor life is unhealthy and if nature is not assisted in throwing it off a serious case of obesity may result.

When you feel that you are getting too stout, take the matter in hand at once. Don't wait until your figure has become a joke and your health ruined through carrying around a burden of unsightly and unhealthy fat.

Spend as much time as you possibly can in the open air; breathe deeply, and get from City Book and Drug Store, 500 Main street, Columbian Pharmacy, 123 South Fourth street, a box of oil of korein capsules; take one after each meal and one before retiring at night.

Weigh yourself every few days and keep up the treatment until you are down to normal. Oil of korein is absolutely harmless, is pleasant to take, helps the digestion and even a few days treatment has been reported to show a noticeable reduction in weight.

ORPET TRIAL IN NINETEENTH DAY

COURT ROOM, WAUKESHA, ILL., June 6.—The trial of William H. Orpet, college youth, charged with the murder of Marian Lambert, Lake Forest high school girl, entered its nineteenth day today, with eight jurors sworn in and two tentatively accepted. There is little hope of getting a jury until both sides have exhausted their peremptory challenges. The state exercised one of their challenges yesterday when the defense tendered the third panel, completing the jury. The fifteenth panel reported for jury service today. So far 1,186 men have been examined.

The state claimed today they had new evidence which they said would show that Orpet murdered Miss Lambert. "He cannot escape," said Assistant State's Attorney David Joslyn. Joslyn would not discuss the nature of the evidence.

RIVER IS NAMED FOR INTREPID OLD KANSAS EXPLORER

other direction, working up from the mouth. Dr. Heath turned his attention to the Beni.

All Afraid of Beni
 The headwaters of the Beni were known as a rich rubber district, and the stream was also traveled for a few miles from its junction with the Madeira, that mighty tributary of the Amazon. The long stretches between these points were absolutely unknown. The rubber men would work their way up a parallel stream, cross the divide to the basin of the Beni, gather the rubber, transport it to the other river and thus return. Nobody cared to try conclusions with the much shorter Beni route, even with the strong probability of riches held out by the virgin territory it traversed.

Dr. Heath pushed up the Madeira and crossed overland to the little town of Reyes near the Beni in its traveled upper reaches. After considerable difficulty he got together enough men for a start down stream, although the natives regarded the venture as certain death. Only two of the Indian boys proved loyal, making the trip from first to last. They knew Dr. Heath from previous trips, and had an abiding faith in his abilities. Their wives apparently knew that they would stick to the expedition, for they passed the night before the start in weeping and mourning for their husbands as though they were dead already.

Had One Rifle
 The expedition when it passed the last limits of previous exploration and pushed into the unknown consisted of Dr. Heath and these two men in a little open boat which they had calked with cornhusks and pitched with clay. They carried a rifle which they were unable to shoot except on rare occasions for fear of bringing down the savages, a sketchy kit of scientific and map-making instruments, axes and machetes, and an ox-hide filled with food.

The little craft floated down the long stretches of the Beni, here two and three miles wide. Dr. Heath mapped its course, was the first white man to see the mouth of the great Madre de Dios river where it meets the Beni. He discovered and named two other major streams and proved that the Beni was navigable from its source near La Paz all the way to its junction with the Madeira. He brought back the first account of the riches of its basin in rubber and medicinal plants, and explored most of the legendary tales of fabulous wealth infesting its course. The grade of the district increased a hundred-fold within a year.

Attacked by Savages
 Savages gave the explorer comparatively little trouble. On one occasion he was attacked on one bank of the river and pushed across to the other. Here he was met by a second flight of arrows. With both sides preempted by natives, there was nothing left for the travelers but the middle. So the little boat pushed out into shallow water, and the occupants took turns standing in the bed of the river and holding the boat through the night. Next morning they pushed on. On another occasion the cannibals terrified the native interpreter, who was then still with the party, by discussing his edible properties in his presence—he was a fat and tempting youth—but the greatest difficulties arose from the inadequacy of the outfit which the explorer was forced to use for lack of a better.

The leaky boat was a source of great trouble. One night when it was badly in need of a fresh calking it leaked so rapidly that Dr. Heath had to sleep in it. When the water rose around him it would awaken him, and he would bale it out.

Boat Over Falls
 The greatest misfortune befell the party on account of the clumsiness of the two Indians, who seem to have been distinguished for their sterling characters rather than a surplus of intelligence. The boat got into rapid water below a great fall, and Dr. Heath sent his companions ashore with bow and stern lines, while he stayed aboard. The Indians warned to their work and hauled so enthusiastically that the resistance of the current ducked the nose of the boat under and swept all the contents into a whirlpool below the falls.

The situation was serious. They were 325 miles from any approach to civilization. Their axes and machetes had sunk. Their rifle and instruments were luckily on the bank, but they were afraid to shoot the latter. Their ox-hide of food and their paddles—they had no means to cut new ones—were whirling round and round in the rushing current. There was only one thing to do. Dr. Heath stripped and plunged after them. The Indians implored him to return, not only because of their affection for him, but also, as they told him, because if they returned without him nobody would believe he had drowned in a whirlpool, and they would be suspected. But he succeeded in clutching the ox-hide, and after being carried around the whirlpool several times, fought his way to shore with it. Then he returned for the paddles. He recovered two, but one had sunk. It was necessary

The three men found themselves very short of food. They eked out their diet for the rest of the trip by breaking off branches from a native palm tree, whose pits is inhabited by large juicy worms. The Indians ate them raw, but Dr. Heath with the fastidiousness of the American, always roasted his.

Pushing on through difficulties such as these, the expedition continued its mapping and gathering of data. The country proved very rich. The annual rise of the river floods thousands of square miles of surrounding territory, a condition very favorable to the growth of the best rubber. The lowlands make excellent pasture at low water seasons, and during flood the cattle retreat to scattered hills, which then become islands. The vegetation is tall and dense. In some cases it will show a growth of twelve feet a year. Bird and animal life abounds. Dr. Heath often met jaguars while out gathering specimens, armed only with a butterfly net.

Today the route the explorer blazed along the Beni is regularly navigated, and a source of great wealth to Bolivia. The cannibals are gradually being won over by fair treatment, and some of them have become rubber gatherers. The wealth of nature was waiting. It needed only an intrepid and daring man to show that the obstacles in the way could be overcome. Dr. Heath was that man; and the Bolivian government is properly grateful. River Heath is well named.

"Having drunk an excellent cup of coffee," said a certain physician, "I found that I hadn't drunk coffee, but Postum!"

Numbers of people, like this doctor, have been pleasantly surprised at the pleasant aroma and snappy, Java-like taste of Postum.

And yet, Postum doesn't contain a particle of coffee—and better still, not a particle of the drug, caffeine, nor any other harmful substance.

Postum is made from wheat, roasted with a bit of wholesome molasses—a pure food-drink that is both healthful and delicious. A great many sufferers from headaches, "coffee heart," nervousness, sleeplessness and other ills brought on by the use of coffee with its nerve-destroying drug, caffeine, have found happy relief by quitting coffee and using

"TWILIGHT SLEEP" IN MOTION PICTURES

Claiming that when Damerschlaaf, or "Twilight Sleep," becomes the established form for obstetrical treatment in all maternity cases, there will be a great increase in population of all civilized races, Mrs. Eria Robinson, well known author and lecturer, is to speak at the Majestic theater afternoon and evening Wednesday, June 7. Mrs. Robinson's lecture will be illustrated by the remarkable motion pictures brought to this country last summer by Dr. Kurt E. The lecturer will point out the important details of treatment which the pictures will amplify and simplify without any objectionable features.

ECZEMA VANISHES IN FEW DAYS

Mighty, Powerful Antiseptic Prescription Stops Itching Instantly, and by Its Use Ulcers, Boils, Abscesses and Carbuncles are Quickly Healed

Now that tens of thousands know that Moone's Emerald Oil will reduce ugly, dangerous varicose veins to normal, we want them to know that this wonderfully effective agent will dry up eczema eruptions in a few days and cause the scales to drop off and disappear.

It acts the same way with any skin disease, such as barbers' itch, salt rheum, redness and inflammatory skin troubles.

So powerful and penetrating is Moone's Emerald Oil that it penetrates the pores of the skin, and goes to the source of the trouble, to disappear and absorb, boils, carbuncles, ulcers and open sores are healed in a few days. Moone's Emerald Oil is not a patent medicine, but is a surgeon's prescription that for years has been successfully used in private hospital practice. All pharmacists dispense a small bottle for 50 cents and complete directions for home use come with each bottle. Any druggist sells a large quantity of Moone's Emerald Oil.

directed against the progressives through soft words and soft actions further explains the day-by-day popularity of the favorite sons, each of whom is in turn being pushed forward for a day of popularity to see if any one of them receives any particular wave of enthusiasm. It is reflected even more emphatically in the unheard of liberality of action accorded by the suggestion that the resolutions committee hear arguments for platform planks in open session—an invitation for any person to come up and speak his mind on any subject.

City is Crowded
By tomorrow, Chicago expects to see the biggest convention crowds in history. Practically all of the delegates will have arrived by night. Hotel lobbies along Michigan boulevard, stripped of every moveable bit of furniture and decoration, were filled to their smallest niche by a seething, jostling, talking, singing, shouting, moving mob of politicians, near-politicians, hangers-on and spectators.

Moore Drop Harmony Plan
The bull moose radicals this afternoon practically abandoned hope of consolidation with the republicans and were agreed that a three-party race for the presidency is practically certain. They believe the nomination of Hughes by the republicans holds the only possibility of the organization "putting over" a possible winner. They figure that even the Hughes candidacy is dynamite for the organization because of the possibility of Hughes' declining to accept unless assured of a united party.

It is in this situation that the progressives believe that they hold the position of greatest strategic value.

BENEZET HAS NOT YET DECIDED TO LEAVE LA CROSSE

If the La Crosse board of education retains the services of L. P. Benezet, superintendent of public schools, it will probably be forced to raise his salary $800.

Mr. Benezet announced today that he had heard from the Manchester board officially, but that he had as yet not decided to leave La Crosse.

Plan to Build
A communication from the council, informing the board that the additional $2,000 for the North Side Junior High school had been appropriated, was read. The committee on grounds and buildings were instructed to secure plans for the new building immediately. The same committee was empowered to proceed with the construction of the Domestic Science room at the Lincoln school.

New Teachers
The following teachers were elected: High school—Mr. M. G. Fox, Mr. Normal Mitchell, Mr. Thomas Pittman, Miss Ruth Wood, Mr. Walter W. ell, Miss Ruth Leissner and Paul H. Shaffer; in the grades—Miss Lucille Puckett, Miss Louise Larson, Miss Josephine Hintgen, Miss Freda Fritz, Miss Mary McSorley, and Miss Daisy Rice. A contract was also voted Mr. William Collinge, who has finally decided to remain in La Crosse, refusing the offer of the principalship of the Plandreau high school.

SPLIT DELEGATION MAY FIND HARMONY IN HUGHES VOTE

the information that he is not expected until Thursday night occasions a great deal of regret.

"Jim" Thompson, La Crosse delegate at large, is a guest at the Kaiserhof, where the older "leaders" size him up like the new boy in school. Though inclined to take "Jim" apart, they carry no chips on their shoulders for ballast, and Mr. Thompson offers another demonstration of how preparedness makes for peace, by cheerfully letting them feel of his muscles. "Jim", the youngster who led the old war horses in the vote-getting, is a seven day wonder at headquarters.

Charles K. Lush and Dr. Charles McCarthy are interested spectators. Col. Lush will be remembered as editor of the La Crosse Chronicle, who wrote some good books and served the first crowd banquet to La Crosse stalwartism, and Dr. McCarthy may be recalled either as the man who administered fully pledged itself to fire, or as author of the bull moose platform of 1912.

Mac Has No Platform
By the way, for the first time in his young life Dr. McCarthy is at a national convention without a platform for excepting for having looked wise when consulted by Gifford Pinchot, the head of the Badger reference library has not committed himself upon "the issues." Perhaps the theft of his 1912 anti-trust plank by the Perkins-Davis brother-act has shown him the folly of his political architecture, and even the presence of Col. Lush, who rescued the lost declaration of four years ago from an Associated Press waste basket, seems hardly to have reassured him.

Col. Lush appeared upon the scene in the Kaiserhof upon an errand of mercy. He was taking up a collection to finance a rescue expedition to liberate the Irish held in captivity in Milwaukee. Dr. McCarthy contributed one cent, but a complete canvass of the Kaiserhof failed to add to the fund. "I wouldn't give a cent for an Irishman in Milwaukee," said the only other guest whose name did not end in "ff."

During the afternoon Col. Lush accomplished what looks like the biggest political coup of the convention. Walking in Michigan avenue with Dr. McCarthy and the writer, Col. Lush espied Sam Cook, of Neenah, bowing over his shoulder to applauding crowds who cheered for Fairbanks, who resembles Sam from both exterior and interior views.

He Beat Him to the Hold
Quick as a flash, with Mr. Cook still looking to the rear, Col. Lush pounced upon the veteran politician, grasped him by the hand and shook it vigorously.

Then the colonel turned to the doctor and exclaimed:
"I call you to witness that I am the first and only living man who ever shook hands with Sam Cook FIRST."

MINNESOTA FARMERS AND BUSINESS MEN INVADE LA CROSSE

Five hundred farmers and business men of Plainview and Elgin, Minn., invaded La Crosse at noon today with the arrival of the steamer G. W. Hill from Winona where they embarked. The party was on an excursion given by the Farmers and Businessmen's clubs of the two Minnesota towns. The excursionists were joined by a large party of La Crosse people who are accompanying the farmers and business men to Winona. A special train will bring the local people home tonight.

MODERN VALJEAN NABBED IN RAGE AFTER BREAD THEFT

The story of Jean Valjean, in Victor Hugo's "Les Miserables," who stole a loaf of bread when he became nearly starved, was re-enacted yesterday on North Salem road near the George Goinick roadhouse with Peter Peterson as hero.

Valjean's dash for liberty was little ahead of the hundred-yard sprint which Peterson put up after taking three loaves of bread and three cans of corn from the delivery wagon of Arthur Jensen, north side grocery. He was caught, however.

When arraigned before Judge John Brindley this morning, Peterson denied all knowledge of the affair. He will be tried in county court.

SUIT MAY FOLLOW SQUABBLE ABOUT REWARD FOR BODY

To whom belongs the rewards for finding the body of seven-year-old Lawrence Larson, who was drowned in Black river while playing on a boom?

Orlando Peterson claims he found the body and wants the entire amount of $100. Connie Johnson, who is said to have been with Peterson, says he is entitled to half.

Peterson has retained Attorneys Morris and Hartwell and A. T. Holmes, and a court of law may be appealed to to decide the issue.

The goodness of some people is exceedingly tiresome.

GREEN BAY ELKS SIGN WITH RELIEF AS "300" ARRIVES

ON BOARD "NO. 300" SPECIAL, GREEN BAY, Wis., June 6.—Led by an indefatigable and careful Mentor in the person of the sinewy Bill Frazer, the delegation from No. 300, La Crosse, arrived early today to make the Elks' convention a success. Members of the Green Bay lodge heaved a gusty sigh of relief when the decorations of the La Crosse car came into sight around the bend. It clinched the success of the convention, and they knew it. Cheers attested their appreciation when the aforesaid sinewy Bill led his cohort from its comfortable quarters and moved uptown to register.

More or Less Eventful
The trip up was more or less uneventful. It was more, that is to say, from certain standpoints, but less eventful, by a few shades, than the European war. Rev. George K. Longbrake shepherded to good purpose on the journey, so that none were out of their pajamas later than 4 a. m. This was said to have established a record.

Suspense had the expedition in its clutches until, just as the special drew out of the Milwaukee station, Joe Hambuechen hooked an eyelash over the rear rail and was hauled safely on board. Then, with all stragglers accounted for, the party proceeded merrily on its way.

Light Men in Gloom
The train ran into a thunderstorm during the trip, and there was a few minutes of woe on the part of J. M. Moncrieff and Frank Evans. It reminded them so forcibly of their late bereavement—the unexpected demise of D. C. Juice in the Edison powerhouse fire—that it was with difficulty they restrained their emotions. The trip was further enlivened by a brisk game of "Button, Button, Who's Got the Button?" which was managed by W. J. Hilton. Mr. Hilton had a card of samples with him, so that everybody got a button and they were all satisfied. Enough buttons to go around makes the game so much fairer, Mr. Hilton explained his revision of the rules.

Late in the evening Marshal Bert Jolivet had his delegation out on a "preparedness" march up the aisle of the cars, teaching them the goose-step for the big pee-rade. Unfortunately, there was a sharp curve in the track just as the platoon passed the reviewing stand, which created disorder in the ranks. Dr. Furstman was there with the first-aid stuff, however, and Larry Scherhart displayed not unexpected talents as his assistant.

"T. R." Hurtgen
The march was greatly appreciated by that sterling advocate of preparedness, William F. Hurtgen. Mr. Hurtgen has been dubbed the "T. R. of the convention", it being popularly reported that he is prepared to start a Holy Cow party and hold a personally-conducted gathering of his own in case he falls of re-election as state vice-president. The convention, however, is said to have a wholesome respect for the mattress-maker, so that a split is not predicted.

Ed Baral was chosen meteorological observer for the delegation. In view of his experience as a sunser observer at a former convention, while Eddie Newburg was placed in the position of assistant by unanimous consent, including Eddie's.

Vic is Off His Feed
In spite of all consolations offered, there is one member of the delegation that refuses to cheer up. He is a black-and-white dog, known as Vic, who refuses to eat because he has lost "his master's voice." Vic, although the best pee-rade dog known to Elkdom, is said to be so much off his feed that his performance in the annual procession will be off-color. He is mourning for his regular master, members of the La Crosse delegation said, and will accept no substitute.

In this he greatly differs from a

"FAKE REMEDIES" ADVERTISED

No doubt some of the medicines advertised are fakes, but these never have any lasting success. They stand in striking contrast to the good old standard, dependable remedies, like Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, which has stood the test of time and for more than forty years has been alleviating the suffering of womankind. Such medicines are a blessing to the community and will continue their good work from one generation to another.

JAP COURSE IN CHINA IS TARGET FORTHEPLATFORM

CHICAGO, June 6.—Japan's demands on China, declared to endanger the "open door" and American prestige in the Orient may be given again in a plank in the republican platform.

Senators Lodge and Borah, who will dominate the resolutions committee, will offer a declaration denouncing the democratic party for allowing American prestige in China to wane without protest; and for alleged encouragement to Japan in its suspected ambitions to dominate the east by a proposal to weaken American power over the Philippines.

Soft Pedal on Universal Service
Both Borah and Lodge favor universal service. But they are prepared to compromise on an "opportunity for universal service". It is expected the fight over the suffrage plank will result in a declaration, promising support to the movement, but outlining no definite plan.

The democrats will be flayed for "incompetence", for filling a depleted treasury by a war tax in time of peace, and for breaking Baltimore pledges as to one term for president free sugar and panama canal tolls.

"Watchful waiting" in Mexico will be assailed unreservedly and protection, under a republican administration, promised to Americans in Mexico or the rest of the world.

The platform will further declare in favor of making the American navy the second in the world, thus approving the recommendations of the naval board.

American prosperity, and the solvency of the treasury, will be declared to have been saved only because the European war arrested the effects of the Underwood tariff.

Full protection to American industry and labor will be promised.

The trust declaration will be the same as that of 1912.

The democratic proposal to build a government armor plate plant will be denounced as unfair to American business.

The La Follette seamen's bill and the proposal for a government ship line will be denounced, and the up-building of the merchant marine by a subsidy favored.

WIFE OF VETERAN COUNTERS TO HIS DIVORCE PETITION

Although she is alleged to have deserted him after almost fifty years of married life, Mrs. Mary E. Vincent, seventy years of age, is not going to sit idly and allow a court to divorce her from her husband, Henry K. Vincent, 1520 Ferry street, veteran of the civil war and member of the Wilson-Colwell post of the G. A. R.

Vincent recently started a suit for divorce, alleging that his wife left him, in company with Russell N. Cooper, and went to Hazen, N. D. The wife is said to have taken part of the household furniture. The veteran charges that his wife refused to allow him to come home.

Mrs. Vincent, in answer to her husband's bill, today denies the charges. She says that once, when her husband had stayed long away from home, he met her and asked if he could return. Mrs. Vincent declared that she told him he might. Upon returning home, Mrs. Vincent states, her husband was arrested while abusing her.

SAYS HUSBAND THREATENED TO TAKE HER LIFE

In a suit for divorce filed in circuit court today Mrs. Augusta Spah, 432 Charles street, alleges that while the dead body of her brother lay in her home, her husband, Paul Spah, threatened to take her life.

Mrs. Spah goes on to state in her complaint that the day following the funeral, she was ordered by her husband to leave the house.

Bull Pup Beats Indian Runner Hunting Tepee

A brindled bull dog, owned by Arthur C. Coppin, locomotive engineer residing at 1511 South Eighth street, last night took a disliking to an Indian lurking about the Coppin residence.

The dog started. So did the Indian. The dog triumphed, despite the red man's ancestral disposition to fleetness of foot. Six blocks south of the Coppin home the dog buried his teeth in the Indian's leg, hurled him to the pavement and held him until the police, who had been summoned by members of the family, arrived.

"Me want 'em place to sleep," explained the Indian, who gave his name as Leonard Walker and maintained his tepee is located somewhere near Winona, Minn. Leonard had been drinking fire water.

BANKERS HEAR HOUSEWIFE HIT AS THRIFTLESS

That poverty in many homes is due to the housewife's lack of business acumen was one of the statements made this morning by C. O. Skirrod, secretary of the Wisconsin Thrift commission, in an address to members of Group 7, Wisconsin Bankers' association.

Incidentally, Mr. Skirrod maintained that it is up to the bankers to suggest ideas that will lead to thrift and prudence among the people of the communities in which their institutions are located.

Economy Hit and Miss
"The average housewife taking her husband's hard-earned money proceeds to conduct the small business of the household on a 'hit and miss' basis with the result that Mr. Provider is kept eternally busy furnishing enough to pacify the butcher, the baker and the candlestick maker."

"If the budget system is good for cities, counties and states it certainly ought to work out well in the average American home."

Like Par Check Clearing
Out of the fifty bankers gathered in La Crosse for today's meeting, there were but few who opposed the proposition for a universal understanding that checks should be cleared at par.

Mr. Skirrod also advocated the formation of thrift clubs in every business institution that employs a large number.

SLAVS BELIEVED PREPARING GREAT EAST OFFENSIVE

LONDON, June 6.—The great drive of the czar against the Austrian lines along the 200-mile front Pruth to Kolki is believed under way. The czar's plan is designed, it is believed, to hit the Austrian forces with equal vigor all along the line.

The attack has been in preliminary preparation all through the winter months, in the gathering of great quantities of munitions and in actual preparation in the last several days by general artillery offensives. These are announced by the Russians and admitted by the Austrians.

In the several heavy rushes already made in the Tarnopol region the Russians have taken many prisoners and some Austrian supplies.

TOMORROW SECOND CONCERT OF YEAR

La Crosse will have its second open-air band concert of the season tomorrow night.

Riverside park is the place. Seven-thirty, sharp, is the time. The West Salem Military band, one of the most prominent musical organizations of the county, and the band which played to a large audience in the park last week, is to furnish the music tomorrow night.

The bandmen have prepared an entire new program and the event is promised to be one of the treats of the summer's public concert program.

Backache? Run Down? Tired? Clean the Kidneys with Hot Water and "Anuric"

When run-down after a hard winter—when life indoors has brought about a stagnant condition in the circulation—most everyone is filled with uric acid—especially is this so of people past middle age. This uric acid in the blood often causes rheumatism, lumbago, swelling of the hands or feet, or a bag-like condition under the eyes. Backache, frequent urination or the pains and stiffness of the joints are also often noticed. Dr. Pierce says that everyone should have a good sweat every day—should drink plenty of pure water and exercise in the open air as much as possible. This helps to throw out the poisonous uric acid through the skin and the "water." But for such persons as are past middle age it's often impossible to do this and lime salts are deposited in the arteries, veins and joints, causing all kinds of distressing conditions. An antidote for this uric acid poison is to take hot water before meals and "Anuric." Ask your druggist for Doctor Pierce's Anuric, or send Doctor Pierce's Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute in Buffalo, N. Y., a dollar bill for a full treatment, or ten cents for a trial package.

"Anuric" is a recent scientific discovery by Dr. Pierce. "Anuric" drives the uric acid solvent so effective that it eliminates these poisons, cleanses the system, allows your over-worked kidneys to resume their normal functions, and just a few days' treatment with "Anuric" will convince you because it brings lasting relief to your painful, aching rheumatic joints—no more backache or dizzy spells. Try it now and be convinced!

1916 REPORT OF THE KEEFE BUSINESS COLLEGE, 4th and Pearl Sts., La Crosse, Wis.

The Great Business Training School Of The Northwest.

Semi-annual report of the Free Employment Bureau of the Keefe Business College, at the close of the school term May 31, 1916.

Do we furnish positions for our graduates? Read the long list below to answer the question.

A few secured positions through their own efforts backed by a Keefe College Diploma, which is a passport to a position of trust and responsibility.

Business men have learned that a Keefe College Diploma in the possession of an applicant for a position means efficiency. Not more than two-thirds of the calls for office assistants could be met during the past term.

The foremost firms and corporations in the country employ our graduates. There is a reason. The following list is incomplete owing to lack of space. The names of those who have taken our correspondence and banking courses, together with a complete list of our graduates (employed in the city), composing approximately three-fourths of the working force of auditors, bookkeepers, private secretaries, stenographers, typewriters, cashiers, etc., in La Crosse, will be published at a later date. Watch for the list. We are proud of our HOME STANDING. Others tell you what great things they do. WE SHOW YOU. Results are convincing. Our summer school begins June 19. A letter, a personal interview, a telephone call, will bring you full and definite information relative to our courses.

CONTEST DECISION MAKES NO CHANGE

CHICAGO, June 6.—Settlement of delegate contests by the republican national committee has centered chiefly on black-and-white fights, especially in Texas. Their net result was to leave original voting computations unchanged and to swing the "regulars" of Texas into power, at the same time deciding minor contests in Florida and Virginia.

A Smooth, Hairless Skin for Every Woman

(The Modern Beauty)

With the aid of a plain delatone paste it is an easy matter to rid the skin of unsightly hairy growths. The paste is made by mixing some water with powdered delatone. This is applied to the hairs not wanted and after 2 or 3 minutes rubbed off and the skin washed, when every trace of hair will have vanished. When you go to your druggist for delatone, be sure you get the genuine article.

Short Story

A LETTER FROM ROME

BY SUSAN E. CLAGETT

(Copyright, 1916, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

He had come across the continent to see her and as he stood in her sitting room was fully alive to its homely comfort. Manlike, he did not notice its suggestion of shabbiness. He merely thought there had been few changes since last he had been in the room and he delighted in the blazing fire that lighted it to its furthest corner.

He had been in the country a week and had, as yet, found no opportunity for the question he had come to ask. As he waited for her he wondered why. She had met him with the greatest friendliness; they had driven together, walked together; had gone in the early morning after the turkeys that had slipped away and had driven them back to their inclosure. She had told him in a matter of fact way, that her income was from her poultry. "Not a large income," she had said, "but I make a fair living."

He had tried to ask her then, but she did not seem to take in his meaning. It had been the same that afternoon. He had then asked her if she would like to go west. She had thrown back her head and laughed heartily.

"Of course, I am always dreaming of travel and some day, perhaps. Who was it said 'all things come to him who waits'?"

He was about to tell her she need not wait when callers interrupted.

But he was determined to know to-night where he stood. The uncertainty was telling on him. He was no longer a young man and grew irritable and impatient at delays that were not necessary. Eleanor knew perfectly well why he had come, and what he wanted. He had always credited her with unusual insight into his motives, and she, like himself, had passed the age for dallying. Was it possible she had changed? He squared his shoulders and threw back his head. No! That was out of the question. Their correspondence had faltered occasionally, but had always been resumed, even after the two or three amazing letters he had received from her several years before. At that time the interval had been longer.

He put his hand in his pocket and drew out a well-worn letter and was reading it as she came into the room. She recognized her own handwriting the moment she stood beside him, but did not refer to it as she drew forward a deep, old-fashioned chair and seated herself.

Slowly he folded the sheet, put it in its envelope and returned it to his pocket.

"That was the first," he said. "I received it in Athens. The others reached me while I was in Cairo. There were four in all and they about spoiled my trip. They were remarkable letters, Eleanor, remarkable from the fact that they were written by so cold a woman as you. I have read them every day and every day have wondered at the imbecile reply I sent you from Rome."

"I wonder still. I was fully aware it was your influence that had urged me on to accomplishment. I have succeeded beyond my utmost ambition and have you to thank for stimulating such efforts as I have made. Knowing how constantly I have acted upon your suggestions, how I have pushed aside obstacles, overcome almost insurmountable difficulties simply because you expected it of me, I have never understood why I acted as I did. Whatever the reason, I have long regretted that letter, and I hope you will believe me when I say it is my dearest hope that you will consent to be my wife."

She did not answer at once and her reply was not direct when it came.

"I would like to tell you a story," Judge Norton," she said. "Just an ordinary story differing little in detail from many others, but it is from the viewpoint of a woman and in that it may be interesting."

"It commenced a good many years ago, this story of a man and a woman ran its way through friendship and ended, as is usual in such cases, with one of them becoming more than a friend. The man, it was. When he was serious, she laughed. Not in ridicule, but because, although she cared in a way, it was not enough to make marriage desirable. The man went away, but their correspondence did not take the place of his companionship and each time he returned she felt she had grown a little nearer to him, but could not bring herself to let him see what she knew he wished to know, although he said little. Impulsive as a girl, as a woman, circumstances had forced her to hide her deeper feelings, and she was unable to give them expression. To all appearances, she was cold."

"The odd part of the story, your honor, is, the young woman never thought the man might change. This was not vanity. It was her understanding of a character that was not likely to veer from a certain established trend of mind and thought. "At first she was sorry this was so, but as her home life, always difficult, now became intolerable, she turned to him, never doubting an immediate response. Made desperate by conditions she could not bear, she asked him to come to her."

"It was a heart letter, but it brought no reply. Many weeks later, she received two or three lines. They told her he was on his way east. There was no reference to what she had written. Just those two or three lines stating a bold fact. If she had been in her normal state of mind, your honor, she would have realized something was wrong. She did wonder a little, but, knowing him to be reserved, thought he preferred to talk with her rather than to write. But it hurt."

"She watched for him, but the days passed without further word. Then a line came to her from his old home."

He had passed her by, the first time in all the years of their friendship, and she was in trouble. Yet so dulled was she by wretchedness that even then she did not doubt him. Though the hurt went deep she still made excuses for him.

"When she finally met him he told her he was going to Europe. The announcement played into her thought. She supposed he referred to their going together. She was possessed by the belief that she was still as necessary to him as he had become to her. But he left her, left her with scarcely a word of reference to her letter."

"Their last evening together was a nightmare for her to remember. Her coldness had chilled him, else he would have spoken. Of this she was sure. She must tell him plainly she cared. Then she committed the folly of her life. She wrote to him. Not one letter, but several. They were all love letters. That much she knows. What she said, she has mercifully forgotten. But never once did she imagine she had placed him in a different position. Then one day came a letter from Rome."

"She laughed when she read it."

"What has come over this man?" she asked herself. When realization came to her she was numbed, frozen by what she had done. The thought that she had told him she cared hit so deeply into her pride there had to be a reaction. Not all at once. Such hurts do not heal easily, but in the course of time she did get over it. Three years later, their interrupted correspondence was resumed. It came about quite naturally. He had been appointed to the bench and she wrote to congratulate him. That was several years ago.

"As a judge, you, yourself, have been called upon to decide nice questions, questions where the distinctions are subtle. Was the woman in the wrong? She thinks not. But she can glimpse the man's amazement as he read those letters; his feelings, that even if his actions were confirmatory until those last days, she had no right to attach importance to them until he had said the words that would support them."

"He has come back and now asks in plain words what he asked many years ago when they were young together—what he asked by implication year after year. She is no longer er young. She is alone. Her support comes from her own efforts and sometimes she grows very tired. His offer means wealth, leisure. Her love for him is dead. But she feels warm friendliness. Will friendliness and companionship take the place of that other feeling now that she is past youth? Does he really care, or is his desire for her merely a pang of conscience that he should have so hurt her? A wish to make amends for that hurt? I think she lost all sense of adjustment when she received that letter."

Long before she had finished, Judge Norton had left his place before the fire and was walking slowly back and forth the length of the room. As her voice ceased he stopped before her.

"I show up pretty badly, Eleanor. I did not know how badly, but I will be thankful for your friendship and companionship, if you will give them to me. I have been a very lonely man since I sent you that letter from Rome. Will you go back with me?"

"Yes, whenever you wish."

Commencement Week in Minnesota Town Started Week Ago with Social Gatherings

RUSHFORD, Minn., June 6.—(Special.)—The activities of Commencement week began when on Sunday evening, Rev. Bantly preached the baccalaureate sermon to a large congregation gathered at the opera house. The second gathering of the week took place on the following Monday evening, the event being an informal party for the faculty and seniors at the home of Mr. and Mrs. L. Tagland of Stevens avenue.

On the following Wednesday evening, the seniors gave a little social gathering for the high school faculty at the home of Mrs. N. H. Tofstad. Friday evening saw the greatest event of all, the commencement exercises, which took place at the opera house. Every seat was full long before the hour named for the beginning. Extra seats were provided but still the throng overflowed into the rear and sides of the hall, even the long room on the side of the building being packed as full as the proverbial sardine box, with the children of the graduates who aided in the program. The professional, national hymn, by Garren, was played by Miss Ringheim as the first number, while the long procession of graduates, faculty, board of education and speaker of the evening marched in, with Rev. S. Bantly and Rockno also in line.

Gladys Prinzing gave the salutatory, as well as the transfer of the hatchet, with Alvin Hishum as the representative of the class of 1917. Ona Rowlee gave the valedictory. The musical numbers were "The Shower," from Il Trovatore; Verdi; "Oh, Columbia, Columbia, Beloved," Donizetti and "The Lost Chord," by Sullivan, all of which were most excellently rendered by the two large choruses. The speaker of the evening was Hon. S. G. Iverson, of St. Paul, a former resident of this city. It was his honor to present Miss Ella Arnold, primary teacher who has taught in the city schools for twenty-five years with a sum of money in behalf of the graduating class, as a small testimonial from the residents of Rushford. The graduating class numbered seventeen and were as follows: Elsie Bantly, Madeline Bjerke, Mina Bjerke, Louis Ekern, Harris Engh, Frances Foss, Viola Halvorsen, Annette Helleland, Gladys Prinzing, Ona Rowlee, Dora Swenson, Archie Shriver, Ester Tofstad, Mabel Tungland, Josephine Vaagen, Walter Webster and Helen Culhane.

Local and Personal
Interest in the proposed Co-operative Lumber company seems to be somewhat on the wane, yet the project may still come through safely. Lanesboro has been chosen as the meeting place of the next convention of Fillmore county business men. June 14th will be the date and as the Old Settlers and Soldiers will meet at the same place on the 15th of June, our sister city will be a very busy place.

One of Rushford's contractors, Mr. John Akre, has secured the work of erecting the auxiliary plant which the Root River Power company is to build at Preston.

Mr. and Mrs. Mike Burke have been recent visitors at the home of Lewis Erickson and family of Bratsberg.

The Oscar Fossum residence property in this city near the railroad track, has been purchased by Mr. and Mrs. Knute Overland of Bratsberg. They will take possession of the home soon.

Miss Elsie St. John of Vinegar Hill has returned to her home after spending the past seven weeks in this city and attending high school.

Friends of Mr. and Mrs. D. Irving Sanford, one-time residents of this city, will regret to hear that the former is not regaining strength as well as formerly. Mr. Sanford and family have been in the desert region of California for many months in the hope of benefiting his health which has been very poor. A relapse setting in recently has caused his relatives and friends much worry.

NEW YORK, June 6.—Toney not only pitched good ball for the Cincinnati Reds at the Polo grounds on Monday, but he also did a little club work in the tenth with the result that the Giants went down to ignominy 3 to 2. SIDE-WHEELERS OF ROCHESTER GET TO ATHLETES' HURLERS

It was not a forfeited game, Manager Evenson announces on the return of the W. B. U. Athletics from Rochester. He says it was just naturally, or possibly unnaturally played. And the score was 9 to 0, with the Athletics on the short end of the score.

Rochester, it seems, has a bevy of left handed batters, and Krause, southpaw, who has not thrown much for the last two seasons, was sent in to forestall a cloudbust. But he didn't forestall, for the Minnesotans landed on him for five hits in the first inning, which, with two errors, netted six runs. Dunfee, premier Austin twirler, worked for Rochester. Copey relieved Krause with two out in the seventh and pitched well until Evenson went in in the seventh.

The score: R H E Athletics . . . 000000000—0 3 5 Rochester . . . 60011010x—9 8 0 Batteries: Krause, Copey and Evenson; Dunfee and McQuillan.

WATCHING THE SCOREBOARD

Yesterday's Homers
Hornsbey of the Cardinals, off Bender, of the Phillies.
Paskert of the Phillies, off Doak of the Cardinals.

Harry Coveleski of the Tigers won a pitching duel over Walter Johnson of Washington. Coveleskie held the Senators to one hit in the first six innings.

The Indians had an off day. Errors behind Couble in the third and fourth game Boston a win over Cleveland. Ruth pitched great ball for the Red Sox.

Four singles and a sacrifice gave the Indians a three run lead in the first and enough to win from the White Sox. Danforth and Russell relieved Benz and held the New Yorkers runless.

Heine Zimmerman won for the Cubs in the fourth when he made a spectacular steal home. He got on third through a double and a sacrifice fly. Packard held the Braves to four hits.

Four hits by Niehoff of the Phillies was the day's batting record. His fourth hit in the eleventh scored Bancroft and beat the Cardinals.

Those Dodgers hang to the top of the ladder as though they were a permanent fixture.

They beat the Pirates, though out-hit almost 3 to 1. Heady fielding and hitting when it counted won for the leaders.

A great throw to the plate by H. Myers in the sixth for a double play prevented Pittsburgh tying the score.

The Giants lost their sixth extra inning game on the home lot. Cincinnati won in the tenth, when Toney tripled and scored on Chase's single. And they were through.
